Martin Slater, Professional Services Director for PTS Consulting Singapore commented: "I have always had a deep interest in how our world supplies all our needs. With the pressures that are now on the environment and with the human world population at its largest in history we all need to consider how we have an impact on future generations and our fellow inhabitants that live on this planet with us. In some small way PTS Consulting's involvement with these types of organisations adds to our culture and awareness in the corporate world in which we operate in and allows us to impart knowledge for the good of all."
